

Resources for Families and Individuals

The Developmental Disabilities Alliance of Western New York (DDAWNY) is a member organization of many of the agencies in Western New York that provide services to individuals with developmental disabilities. While DDAWNY does not provide direct services to individuals itself, we do have some great resources to share with you.

In our Document Library , we have several documents which individuals with developmental disabilities and their families. For instance, our Guide to Services lists all of the agencies in Western New York and details the services they provide. We also have a Spanish Language Guide to Services available. Click here for the 2010 Recreation Services Directory which lists most of the recreational facilities and programs in the area that serve people with developmental disabilities. Click here to download The 2009 Respite Services Handbook. The Housing Resource Guide is updated as of November 2008 and is co-sponsored by Parent to Parent of NYS and DDAWNY. Having trouble figuring out what all those Acronyms used in this field are? Click here for the OMRDD Acronym List. Families may want to visit the Family Ed. & Training section to find out about great trainings available to them. Our Links section contains some very useful websites for individuals with developmental disabilities and their families. Click HERE for the first e-newsletter of the NYS Housing Independence Action Committee. |